

ORDER OF THE RAINBOW FOR GIRLS
FOR GIRLS AGES 10-20

Getting Girls Ready for Life!

IS RAINBOW RIGHT FOR ME?

Have you ever wanted to do something or go somewhere so badly that you would do anything to make it happen (the beach, theme parks, comic con, white-water rafting, a music concert)? Only that you are not able to because your parents don't have the time or money?

Imagine that, like you, there are other girls in the community with the same problem, and you and all those other girls came together to form a club, with the sole purpose of working together to support charities, serve your community, and make your shared dreams of adventure happen. If you said yes, then Rainbow is for you.

While Rainbow is a place to seek like-minded girls who will share in your adventures, Rainbow Girls is not all fun and games. Rainbow is a service organization and being a Rainbow Girl means performing charitable work, memorizing information, planning events, learning teamwork, leading teams, public speaking, fundraising, and more. The goal of Rainbow is to get girls ready for life and this happens by putting in the work.

LIVE YOUR ADVENTURE

HOW IT WORKS

1. Rainbow runs on the ideas of its members, so it all starts with the brainstorming of ideas to determine what adventure the assembly will do and service projects the group will complete. Giving practical experience in developing open communication skills and working as a team.

2. Rainbow runs in four-to-six-month terms, so members discuss the ideas presented and decide what activities they will take part in over the four-to-six-month period, creating a term plan. Giving practical experience in goal setting and scheduling of events.

3. Rainbow members fund their own projects, so once a plan is in place, the members create a budget to determine what kind of funding they will need to participate in their weekend adventures and complete their service projects. Giving practical experience in developing critical thinking skills, researching information and creating cost estimate budgets.

4. Rainbow understands that large goals can seem intimidating, so each goal is broken down into milestones, which are used to keep their progress moving forward. Giving practical experience in developing milestones and setting deadlines.

5. Rainbow members are guided by a board of adults made up of advisors and parents, so once their plan is complete, the members put together a proposal that is presented to the Adult Advisory Board for approval. Giving practical experience in proposal writing, presentations, and written communications.

6. Rainbow is youth ran, so once approved, team leaders work with members to accomplish their milestones and raise money to fund their adventures. Giving practical experience in team management and developing healthy teamwork skills.

7. Rainbows lead themselves, so our members develop meeting agendas and hold business meetings to get updates on project progress, issues and to refocus their work, as needed, to ensure their goals are met. Giving practical experience in agenda writing, public speaking, adapting to problems and running business meetings.

8. Rainbow believes if you work hard, you should play hard, so once the assembly successfully funds an adventure, it's time for them to have fun! Giving practical experience in balancing work vs. play and producing results.

9. Rainbow is adaptive, so our members host After Action Reviews to discuss past adventures. Discussing what they liked about the event, what they didn't like and what they would do differently in the future. Giving practical experience in learning from their mistakes to make programs better.

Planning an adventure in Rainbow requires the same skills needed to manage projects in the corporate world. All skills which will look great on a resume when graduating from high school!
